inspired by the work of Andrew Goodman—a sophomore at Queens College, who was murdered along with James Chaney and Michael Schwerner during Freedom Summer 1964 while attempting to register African-Americans to vote. VE thus empowers a national community of campus leaders to mobilize others to act on issues of importance using their votes, voices and networks. In addition to the stipend, the Ambassador will receive training from national experts in civic engagement, engage with a supportive "e-mentor", and will be expected to work 8-10 hours per week. CCE

The CCE is now recruiting a student intern who would be willing to assist in coordinating end-of-year resource drives in the residence halls. Often, when students leave campus, they also either leave behind or throw away unwanted clothing, food, household items, etc. CCE is working with ResLife to ensure that these items are donated to local people who need them (instead of the landfills). This 8hr/week volunteer position will require someone who is organized, motivated, team-oriented, and an excellent communicator. Email the CCE to indicate your interest and include a recent resume.

REACT to FILM is seeking enthusiastic leaders and innovative thinkers to join their College Action Network! Chapter Leaders are the front-line youth leaders, promoting social issues by screening the most important social issue documentary films at colleges across the country. They depend on campus chapter leaders to organize and host local screenings 2X per semester, in conjunction with other RtF chapters across the country. This creates a national moment on each social issue via simultaneous screenings, which are usually followed by panel discussions, and which give student the means to REACT to the important social issues of today and make collective VOICE heard locally and nationally! Chapter Leaders gain invaluable insight into how a new and successful technology/media startup is built, and have direct impact on marketing and growing the impact of a national nonprofit aiming to empower America’s youth. REACT to FILM will provide a structured program with plenty of guidance.
