FACULTY SEARCH REMINDER: Please remember to send your faculty candidate seminar announcements to Aneesa Thomas to add to the Watson School Seminar Calendar. Thank you!

WE'RE ON THE RADIO!
The Watson School is a new underwriter for our local public radio station, WSKG at 89.3 FM, a PBS affiliate. Tune in on Tuesdays at 4:59 pm and Thursdays at 8:59 am, starting February 18, 2014. WSKG is supported by Binghamton University’s Thomas J. Watson School of Engineering and Applied Science, supporting industry through research and graduate education. Information at Binghamton dot edu slash Watsonlabs.

SUNY Conversations in the Disciplines Research and Scholarly Developments in Progressing Toward an Energy-Smart New York

A SUNY Conversations in the Disciplines will be held in Binghamton on March 31st and April 1st to examine the state of research, development and deployment of energy-smart technologies throughout SUNY and New York state. It will facilitate the exchange of information among SUNY faculty, industry and government representatives to promote collaboration and identify best practices as we progress toward an energy-smart New York. We are seeking abstracts for individual or panel presentations and posters for the breakout sessions. Presentations should be 20 minutes, 5 minutes for questions.

More information can be found here.

Would you like to be a Faculty Mentor for a Louis Stokes Alliance for Minority Participation (LSAMP) student this summer?

The LSAMP Summer Research Internship Program is an 8 week paid summer internship here at Binghamton University, during which students will work as a Research Assistant on a faculty-designed research project, at least 30 hours a week.

Please send a one or two page description of your proposed project. Please include a description of the role students will play in the project. In addition, include a separate request for research supplies and other expenses, if applicable. The project description will be circulated among the LSAMP students, and, if any are interested in working on your project, they will contact you directly. Please note the amount of funding for research supplies will be granted based on the number of requests received, the number of students working on each project, and available funds. We need research project proposals by Friday, February 28, 2014. Please send proposals via e-mail to the LSAMP Project Assistant, Junior Beckford (beckfordjr@binghamton.edu)

More information can be found here.

BINGHAMTON RESEARCH DAYS

Binghamton University will celebrate research with a series of events on March 26, 27 and 28, 2014. Faculty members, academic departments and programs and student groups are invited to plan events related to research. The schedule will include open labs, seminars, poster sessions, tours, speakers and more. Faculty members are encouraged to take several minutes during class on one of those days to introduce themselves as scholars. This year, organizers have chosen to focus on ethics as a theme.

Visit the website or e-mail Rachel Coker for more details.