

A DAY IN THE LIFE OF AN EMERGENCY PHYSICIAN

DR. ANDREW WOLLOWITZ '80

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 11

3:30 - 5 P.M. | LECTURE HALL 9

ARE YOU INTERESTED IN A CAREER IN MEDICINE?

The Physician Alumni Lecture Series, A Day in the Life, gives students the opportunity to hear from alumni physicians representing a vast array of specialties. A question and answer session will follow the talk.

Dr. Andrew Wollowitz '80, will discuss his path from Binghamton, through medical school to his current career as an Emergency Physician.

Dr. Andrew Wollowitz is Vice-Chairman of Emergency Medicine at Montefiore Medical Center in Bronx, New York. Dr. Wollowitz attended Binghamton University from 1976-1980 where he graduated with Theater Department honors in Stage Design. After college Dr. Wollowitz relocated to New York City, pursuing multiple interests in design, modern dance and performance art. At age thirty-one he changed career direction and entered the Mount Sinai School of Medicine. He then completed a residency in Emergency Medicine at Jacobi and Montefiore Hospitals.

Dr. Wollowitz is Medical Director of Montefiore's Wakefield Campus Emergency Department. While remaining active in clinical medicine, he also supervises a staff of over 50 physicians and physician assistants. He is associate professor at Albert Einstein College of Medicine where he teaches Introduction to Clinical Medicine to first and second year students.
