

A DAY IN THE LIFE OF A PRIMARY CARE PHYSICIAN DR. JENNIFER WEINTRAUB '07

FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 9 | 3:30 - 5 P.M. | UU 111 (UNIVERSITY UNION)

Are you interested in a career in medicine?

Dr. Jennifer Weintraub '07, will discuss her path from Binghamton, through medical school to her current career as the Assistant Director of the Primary Care Track of the Internal Medicine Residency Program.

Dr. Jennifer Weintraub is an Assistant Professor in both General Internal Medicine and Medical Education. She graduated summa cum laude from Binghamton University and went on to receive her medical degree from Tufts University School of Medicine in Boston. Her Internal Medicine residency was proudly completed at the Icahn School of Medicine at Mount Sinai.

Dr. Weintraub now serves as the Assistant Director of the Primary Care Track of the Internal Medicine Residency Program. She practices primary care at the Internal Medicine Associates at Mount Sinai and is an educator for learners at both the medical student and resident level. She is passionate about providing high-quality, holistic, thoughtful care to patients of all backgrounds and about teaching the future generation of physicians.

Register by February 8th

<http://bit.ly/PhysicianWeintraub>